The Alberta and British Columbia governments, in co-operation with the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways, are promoting a campaign to recruit settlers for the north-west areas opened up by the Alaska highway after the war.

A few days ago we happened to run across a copy of the Arrow Lakes, B.C., News of October 29, 1942. It contained account of the death of Walter Williams, well known Welsh miner and one time friend and partner of a present Blairmore miner citizen, Isaac Daniel. Williams passed away on the 17th of October, 1942. At the time of his death he was owner and operator of the Burton hotel on the Arrow Lakes.

Every woman in Blairmore is urged to come out—help us with your donations.

CHURCHES ARE ASKED TO SAVE ONE TON IN FIVE

Because of unprecedented war demands, the supply of coal in Canada falls short of requirements. The situation is so serious that the prime minister has declared it a national emergency.

Recognizing that the churches are the greatest power for good in any community, your government appeals to you—the clergymen and churchgoers of every denomination—to set an example. By adopting a few simple conservation measures, your church can conserve large quantities of fuel, and by personal appeals to your fellow church members you can assist in achieving a substantial saving in the home. Coal is not the only fuel in short supply. Canada also lacks sufficient firewood and oil. This appeal for conservation applies regardless of what type of fuel is burned.

Heating systems may differ as between various church buildings, but all churches can adopt measures with a view to saving one ton in five. Here are ten suggestions:

- Hold meetings on consecutive days.
- Hold joint meetings whenever possible.
- Have choir practice in smaller room.
- Keep temperatures down.
- Shut off heat in all unused rooms.
- Meet in private homes whenever possible.
- Use cheaper grade fuel.
- Have efficiency of heating plant checked.
- Keep windows closed.
- Make sure that firing methods are efficient.
- Save one ton in five.

Most of the mines in this district have been operating on short time this week, owing to shortage of railway cars occasioned by the movement of grain, etc., on the prairies.

Warrior of Dieppe and Kiska

COLONEL MENARD SUBJECT OF POSTER

Under a hail of steel and fire on the beaches of Dieppe, Lieut.-Colonel Dollard Menard, DSO, officer commanding the French Canadian Regiment, Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, fought gallantly, was wounded five times in as many hours, covered the re-embarkation of his men and fainted as he was carried back on a landing barge. Regaining consciousness he organized the anti-aircraft defence of the barge, lying flat on his back. In the recent invasion of Kiska by Canadian and American troops, Col. Menard commanded the Hull Regiment of Quebec. This drawing by Hubert Rogers, depicting the scene at Dieppe appears on the latest poster in the National Film Board's "Men of Valor" series.

The French Canadian officer was awarded his DSO after the attack on the French coast town last year. The retained language of his citation states: "While in command of his battalion, this officer displayed the highest qualities of courage and leadership. Landing with the first attacking parties, he was wounded almost from the beginning, but he continued to direct operations of his unit by wireless under constant machine gun, mortar and artillery fire. Later, in order to gain a better vantage point, he crept forward to higher ground, but was again wounded. When finally taken on board a tank landing craft, although wounded for the fifth time, he still insisted on organizing aircraft defence and looking after his men. He set an example in the best tradition of the service, and was an inspiration to all ranks in his battalion."

Col. Menard, a permanent force officer has been in the regular army since his graduation from Royal Military College at Kingston in 1936. He was already a veteran when this war broke out. Attached to the British Army in India in March, 1938, he took part in the Waristram campaign of that year. He then went to Hong Kong and served six weeks on a submarine with the China Fleet and the Royal Engineers in the Far East, returning to Canada in 1940.

He went to England in August of 1940, rising to the rank of company commander of the Royal 22nd in December, 1941. He then occupied the post of brigade major, until his promotion to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in March, 1942, becoming at the age of 29 Canada's youngest officer of that rank. Of the men he led at Dieppe, Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, Col. Menard says: "They were simply magnificent. I couldn't wish for better men."

DISTRICT MASONS CONVENE

Masonic lodges of Alberta district No. 8 held their annual meeting at Hillcrest on Tuesday of this week, members from Macleod, Pincher Creek, Hillcrest-Bellevue, Coleman, Cowley and Blairmore in attendance. Fred Padgett, of Bellevue, district deputy, was in charge of the sessions.

Prior to the meeting in Hillcrest, all sat down to a splendid repast served by the ladies of the Eastern Star in the I.O.O.F. lodge room at Bellevue.

Russell J. Bradley, grand master, of Edmonton; George Moore, grand secretary, Calgary, accompanied by Dav Patterson, also of Calgary, were present and took part in the proceedings.

Mr. Joe Emmerson, of Coleman, was elected district deputy to succeed Mr. Padgett and the annual session will be held in Coleman next year.

MINERS' CONTRIBUTION

Crows' Nest Pass miners assessed themselves 50 cents each as a minimum for the Salvation Army campaign. This sets an example to all who, not able to give large donations, can help to this extent, for, as the late General Booth said, it is not the big donations of the wealthy which built the Salvation Army; it was the countless gifts of the poor.—Macleod Gazette.

MAIL EARLY!

Faced with the task of moving more Christmas mail to more Canadians in more corners of the world than ever before, the post office department at Ottawa has announced the deadline for parcel mailings will be November 1st.

Parcels mailed by that date—unless there is a mail rush at the last moment—will be delivered to Canadians in Sicily, Italy, Ceylon, North Africa, the United Kingdom, the Aleutians, the West Indies, or wherever else Canadians may be.

The mailing deadline is ten days earlier than in 1942.

Rt. Rev. H. R. Ragg, Anglican bishop of Calgary, will visit Coleman and Blairmore on October 19th and 20th. On Sunday evening, October 17th, he will preach at St. John's church at Pincher Creek.

ACHIEVES CLUB MEMBERSHIP

F. J. Lamey

The Mutual Life of Canada has announced that Mr. F. J. Lamey, of Blairmore, qualified for membership in the Company's Leaders' Century Club on his outstanding record in the club year recently closed.

Qualification for Club membership not only requires the production of a large volume of business, but also signifies a high quality of life insurance service.

EXTRA YEAR AT HIGH SCHOOL

Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer and minister of education, on Monday announced that a grade 13 high school course may be adopted in Alberta schools in the near future, such a course to involve addition of an extra year to the high school curriculum.

Preparations for the four-year course (starting from grade 10) be ushered in on October 12th. All students entering grade ten must take four compulsory subjects which will serve as the first course of the four-year programme. The subjects will be English, social studies, mathematics and science. Mathematics and science courses have been added on recommendation from department curriculum committees.

Alex. Biron and bride have arrived from Prince Rupert, B.C., and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McMurdo at Pincher Creek. Aleck's parents reside in the Beaver Mines district. Mrs. McMurdo is a sister of his.

WHERE CIVILIANS CAN HELP

Western Canadians, although far removed from the scenes of actual conflict, can help sink enemy ships and down enemy planes simply by using their scissors or by digging up used magazines.

Allied airmen must be able to recognize instantly whether the plane or ship they see is one of "ours" or the enemy's. His very life and the lives of his companions depend upon the accuracy of his observation.

Aircraft recognition classes are held at all stations. There, students are shown pictures, screen slides and models of every available type of aircraft. Each airman also makes up a personal scrap book for study purposes. It follows that the more pictures he sees of aircraft from every possible angle, the better his observations will be when he takes to the air on operational flights.

That's where civilians can help. They are urgently asked to send to the nearest air force station or to the recognition officer at No. 4 Training Command Headquarters, Calgary, any magazines or clippings of aircraft, either black or white or colored. Any clippings or post cards or other reproductions of ships, either warships or merchant vessels, should be sent to the same source. Reproductions of all types of ships are required—not only of enemy nations, but of all other countries as well.

The need is real and constant.

Macleod Elks will observe Thanksgiving Day by staging a ball.

Three of a kind!

CANADIANS ARE ALL ALIKE in one important respect. They do their own thinking and get there under their own power. It's a national characteristic. No pampered or servile people could have built this nation. It took men of courage and moral fibre to clear the forests, dig the mines—to build our farms and factories, our cities and our towns—to give us a standard of living that is the envy of the world. Canada's greatness stems directly from the self-reliance and initiative of individual citizens. These qualities provide a sure foundation on which to build for tomorrow.

Post-War Plans

EXPERIENCE HAS SHOWN that many of the ills which in the past have befallen this country, and the world at large, have been the result of our failure to foresee certain eventualities, and to plan for them. Canada, in common with many other nations, has had the misfortune to experience two wars, and a depression of unprecedented proportions, within the last twenty years. The many and complex problems which have arisen during those two decades have been met and solved, some more successfully than others, and we have gained much from them in the way of experience. As a result of this, there has been a united opinion among the people of Canada in favor of a plan for dealing with the inevitable difficulties of the post-war period, and especially in regard to providing for those who will be discharged from the services. In looking back over events which followed the first world war, it has been realized that many of the problems which developed then, could be avoided a second time. With this purpose in view, a great deal of study has been devoted to plans for Post-War Reconstruction in Canada.

Employment Is Major Problem

There has been considerable interest shown in other countries in Canada's plans for dealing with post-war problems, and outside observers have declared that the Dominion is far in advance of any of the other United Nations in this respect. This appears to be especially true in connection with the plan for the demobilization and rehabilitation of the men and women of the armed services, and much interest has been shown abroad in the results of the studies of this problem which have been made here. A report on this subject was made recently by Mr. Walter S. Woods, Associate Deputy Minister of National Health. Mr. Woods stated that "a job is the answer for everyone concerned in the rehabilitation problem," and he outlined the many provisions which are being planned, in the hope of avoiding a serious unemployment problem here after the war. Among many other things, there is under consideration a scheme of "retarded demobilization" to avoid a bottle-neck in labor, and there is also a plan for a "demobilization furlough" for service men, during which they might make arrangements for their return to civilian life.

Help Planned Is Practical

The help planned for those leaving the services appears practical, and is designed to give them economic independence and security as quickly as possible. At the same time, a maintenance allowance to avoid unnecessary hardship during this period. For example, those who enter farming or business are to be given a living allowance until the returns of their enterprise are sufficient for their needs. Education has been given an important place in these post-war plans, and there are provisions for those who have served, to continue interrupted university courses, or for those who are qualified, to attend universities for a period equal to their term of service. It will also be possible for the demobilized men and women to learn new trades or to take refresher courses in those already acquired. These progressive plans are an encouraging sign that the people of Canada are taking an interest in the future, and of our determination to bring about improved social and economic conditions in this country after the war.

U.S. Navy In Peace

No More Talk Of Disarmament After The War

Maintenance by this country of such a navy as we shall have at the end of the war means that any post-war agreements to which we are a party can be enforced.

The fact that such a force exists under control of a people who desire it, not to make war but to preserve peace, can become the stabilizing force for the world needs during the reconstruction period and afterward. We shall have this force, we will have made our sacrifices to obtain it, no other power need fear it, no other power need strive to match it unless that power is motivated by evil ambitions.

We experimented once with the noble philosophy of post-war disarmament. We took the lead in that experiment. We know how it turned out. We should not make that mistake again.—Chicago Daily News.

From Down Under

Members Of Australian Air Force Train At Winnipeg

Among the boys who wear the dark blue uniform of the Royal Australian Air Force in training as Wireless Air Gunners at No. 3 Wireless School, Winnipeg, are many who already are veterans of this war on fronts that stretch half-way around the world.

Five months in Tobruk was not enough for LAC Laurie Maxwell of Parramatta, N.S.W., and now he is working to join those fliers who helped chase the once successful "Desert Fox" from the North African shores. LAC Bob Lyons of Campbelltown, N.S.W., helped truck in one division and truck out another from Tobruk before he joined the R.A.A.F.

Action in the Syrian campaign after knocking around other parts of the Middle East was experienced by LAC K. Robins of Thornbury, Victoria and on a more distant front war LAC Bill Johns of Barabara, N.S.W., who battled at Milne Bay and Port Moresby, New Guinea.

LAC Arthur Dyke of Port Pirie, S.A., has no fear of battle in the air because it was by air that he escaped from Singapore four days before the Japs invaded Malaya. Later he saw service in Burma and Ceylon. Many more of the boys have served at Darwin, the far north, Australian port, first to be bombed by the Japs.

The Royal Eagle

Paddle-Steamer, Once A Pleasure Boat Has Evitable War Record

An impressive war record has been chalked up by The Royal Eagle, a paddle-steamer which used to carry holiday Londoners from Tower Bridge to the sands of Southern Margate and Ramsgate, says "Britain". It has been in action against aircraft 82 times, has destroyed at least two enemy planes and has saved 24 lives at sea. This does not include its part in Dunkirk when it made three crossings, was dive-bombed 48 times and brought home three thousand troops. Its crew have won two Distinguished Service Crosses, four Distinguished Service Medals and 18 mentions in dispatches.

Parachute Battalion

Dare-Devils Are Not Dressed, Says The Training School Head

Shilo, Man.—The "dare-devil type" does not make the ideal paratrooper. Lieut.-Col. R. P. Routh, 29-year-old commander of the Canadian Parachute Training School said here recently as new men arrived in camp to start their training in the most spectacular of the military arms.

"We try to keep away from that type as much as possible," said Col. Routh. "It's the steady, fairly intelligent fellow you can count on."

Volunteers for paratroop units are now being sought in army centres throughout Canada. Requirements call for soldiers who have completed their basic training, who possess a high degree of mental and physical stability, and who can pass the necessary stiff medical examination.

Officers, N.C.O.'s and men were included in the latest groups to arrive. Nearly all provinces were represented, with the largest quotas from Ontario, Quebec and the four Western provinces.

The men on arriving served up the prized "airborne" flashes, and will receive the coveted wings of the Canadian paratrooper after a few weeks of training and several jumps that are being successfully completed. Col. Routh stated that the first few weeks of instruction produce a trained jumper, that is a man who knows how to jump safely without injury to himself or others. "He is a parachutist, but not a paratrooper," he pointed out. "Several more weeks of instruction in tactics and weapons followed the initial training in parachute training, he said. Only when a man has completed the full course can he be termed a paratrooper."

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

FOOD FOR HEALTH — NOT ILLNESS

These days when we have rationing and some food shortages, left-over foods take on new importance. If they are not handled properly in the kitchen they may become harmful instead of beneficial to us.

Food may become the cause of illness when kept at the temperature of an ordinary kitchen for five hours. This is not what is commonly and erroneously called "spoiling" but is due to harmful substances produced by bacteria. You can not always tell whether the food is harmful by appearance or odor as there may be no apparent change. The toxic effects may be produced in cooked as well as fresh food and once formed no subsequent cooking will make the food safe to eat.

Foods that are likely to spoil when adequate refrigeration is not available are meat, milk, eggs and products made with these foods, such as cottage cheese, cream fillings for pies and cakes.

You may avoid food poisoning by remembering and practicing these few simple rules:

Store perishable foods at a temperature of 40 degrees F. Do not leave food in the kitchen for any length of time without refrigeration.

Warm food or frozen food that has been defrosted should not be wrapped in wax paper when put in the refrigerator. The paper holds the heat inside the food long enough for the bacteria to grow.

Remember that poultry, ham, tongue, cottage cheese, hollandaise sauce and cream filled baked goods are particularly subject to the growth of bacteria. You must be sure they have been refrigerated before you buy them and if they are saved as left-overs keep them refrigerated.

We must not think because the hot weather has ended there is no more danger of food poisoning. Every year hundreds of people in private homes suffer from a little food poisoning disaster. Don't let this happen in your home.

Interesting Relic

May Be Connected With Landing In Newfoundland 300 Years Ago

A battered lead cylinder that may be a relic of Sir Humphrey Gilbert's landing in Newfoundland 300 years ago has been found beneath four feet of silt at Bull's Harbor Cape while workmen were excavating for a construction project.

Possibility has been voiced that the cylinder, adorned with an old crest, may have been a mark erected by the explorer in 1583 when he took possession of Newfoundland for Britain. History says Gilbert raised the banner of England near the present site of St. John's, and a leaden crest with the royal arms was attached to a wooden pillar near the water's edge.

The cylinder found by the workmen bears a crest of a face in bold relief surrounded by a wreath of flowers or leaves, but no scroll or date is decipherable. It is about 18 inches long, four inches wide and two inches thick, and has been battered by the elements for some time.

There is nothing to indicate it is connected with Sir Humphrey Gilbert, but it is being sent to the College of Heralds in London for examination.

Sir Humphrey Gilbert founded the first English settlement in North America at St. John's on Aug. 5, 1583. Shortly afterward he set sail southward for further explorations and was lost with all his men off the Azores Islands near the African coast.

Was Unprepared

United States Owes Much To British And Russian Resistance

Commenting upon General Marshall's report as U.S. Chief of Staff the New York Nation, in an article headed "Our Good Luck," expresses its astonishment at what it terms the lackadaisical attitude which permeated not merely business but the whole country towards the production of war material between June, 1940, and December, 1941.

"Anyone," it says, "who reads the Marshall report will see how much we owe to British and Russian resistance. Had both perished, crushed, we should have faced a long and disastrous war on our own soil." Such a war would, of course, have extended to our own soil. There is, therefore, some satisfaction in recalling that during that period Canadian production of war material and the Canadian contribution to British resistance was increasingly substantial.

We thus lent an effective hand in the defence of North America.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Yugoslavia May Soon Become A Major Front

LONDON.—King Peter II of Yugoslavia, declared in Cairo, that he expects Allied troops to be fighting on Yugoslav soil soon while thousands of Yugoslav patriots fought German troops in their mountainous homeland in battles approaching the stature of a major front.

Conducting his first press conference at the new seat of his government in Cairo, King Peter acknowledged he might not be able to accompany the invasion waves, but said he was looking forward eagerly to seeing Belgrade again. The exiled government moved to Cairo recently from London.

Split, on Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, the port of Susak, 175 miles to the north near Italian Fiume, and the area of Gorizia, about 25 miles above Italian Trieste, were scenes of action involving many Nazi divisions.

The German high command indicated the scope of the military task by declaring that in current action in the Gorizia area alone "Slovenian and Communist bands" had lost more than 1,000 killed and "several thousand prisoners." Nazi troops were reported to have been ordered to take no more prisoners.

The BBC said an Allied warship had taken arms to Yugoslav patriots along the Dalmatian coast.

In a communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav station, heavy and indecisive fighting was reported about Split. It said patriot lines were holding strongly at Susak and that the Germans were suffering high casualties.

The Berlin radio told of bitter fighting in the Dolomite foothills between Venice and Trieste and said the entire area was "unsafe" for German troops. Nazi reinforcements were reported being rushed into the Dalmatian coastal sector to take some of the pressure off battered German troops who recaptured Split after 15 days of hard fighting.

All available information indicated that the weight of 25 or more German divisions would be taken off the Allies by this war in the Balkans.

To German efforts to classify Yugoslav troops as bandits and to German orders that no more prisoners be taken, Milojko Gavrilovic, the Yugoslav embassy counsellor here, gave this reply:

"German war criminals must answer individually if they doubt the rules of war and slaughter the prisoners of a duly constituted army."

In Cairo, King Peter said Bulgaria should be punished and severely punished. They're attacked us three times in the last century."

He added, however, that he hoped the post-war Bulgaria could be brought into the Balkan confederation.

"Once you give them economic help so that they don't depend on outside influence I think they will be helpful," he said.

The present government, Peter said, is "only temporary until we return to Yugoslavia, when we will give the people a chance to choose their own government."

In a prepared statement he referred to Prime Minister Churchill as "one of the greatest men in history, of whom not only the British people are proud but also all of the United Nations."

DIZZY DIVE

Believed To Have Attained A Speed Of 840 Miles An Hour

A U.S. FIGHTER BASE, somewhere in England—Lieut. Robert H. Knapp of Norwich, N.Y., was believed to have achieved a speed of approximately 840 miles per hour in a dive during an airfight over Emden, Germany.

If true, then Knapp, pilot of a Thunderbolt fighter which helped escort heavy bombers in a raid on the German city, probably has flown faster than any human being ever has travelled before. Authorities did not explain how they arrived at the estimate of his speed, however.

The greatest speed previously officially recorded by the pilot of a fighter plane was that of Col. Ches Hough, also of the 4th air force fighter command, when he dove a Thunderbolt "more than 780 miles an hour," which is the speed of sound, in a test flight in England last spring.

Already well on their way in Southern Italy, Canadians stop at a formation headquarters to study a map and plan fastest routes northwards in pursuit of fleeing German troops. ## Bacon Quota For Britain Is To Be Filled

OTTAWA.—A competitive equal of triumph came from the provinces as the federal agriculture department reported cheerfully an increase in hog marketing. Officials said that of all the tough food-production jobs Canada has undertaken in wartime none appeared more difficult than to provide the United Kingdom with 675,000,000 pounds of bacon this year.

The Canadian authorities decided there would have to be an increase of 28 per cent. over 1942 marketings. There was hard sledding at first and at the end of August, marketings were only five per cent. greater than in 1942 when the British quota was 600,000,000 pounds.

But—and their "but" had a note of triumph—officials invited inspection of figures for the month of August as an augury of things to come.

In August, Saskatchewan farmers marketed 75 per cent. more hogs than in the same month last year. The Maritime provinces were higher by 32 per cent., Manitoba by 21 per cent., Alberta by 17 per cent., and Ontario by 10 per cent.

Marketings in Quebec were down three per cent., and in British Columbia 20 per cent., but the overall gain shown by the provinces compared with August, 1942, was 21 per cent.

The August figures were particularly gratifying to the Canadian meat board—which handles purchases for the United Kingdom—because fall hog marketings usually are higher than in other periods. The August increase indicated that even better news might be expected in later months.

The contract dates almost coincide with the calendar year and later marketings will be applied on the 675,000,000-pound contract.

Because of this condition, officials said, it is possible most of the provinces will achieve the production goals that seemed so remote when the contract period started.

Manitoba set itself an objective of a 25 per cent. increase in hog marketings over last year, and at the end of the first eight months actually was 27 per cent. ahead. With an objective of an increase of 70 per cent. for the year, Saskatchewan was 28 per cent. ahead at the end of eight months.

Italy's Status In The War Is To Be Defined

LONDON.—A chance for at least a limited reprieve for Italy from the status of a defeated aggressor nation was seen here following disclosure that Italian ships and troops already are working in the British-American service.

Thus far, it is understood here, Italy definitely has been classed as a defeated enemy, but there is concrete basis for the belief she will be given an opportunity to alter her status provided she collaborates fully with the Allies.

Whether Italy will be asked actually to declare war on Germany is a question that cannot be answered categorically in London, but such an act was believed possible.

Prime Minister Churchill said recently that Italy now was "working her passage," and he implied the Allies would determine her future position on the extent of her labors in the coming months.

The question was raised in the London press as to whether Italian troops and ships would be allowed to fight for themselves, and if so, whether Italy would be given a seat on the right side of the peace table. One answer is that smaller Italian ships, manned by their own crews, already are sailing in the direct service of the Allies.

It became known too that organized Italian troops actually are in service behind the lines of the Anglo-American 5th and British 8th Armies now pushing up the leg of the Italian boot, performing transport and other work in addition to sharing in sabotage and other such activities behind the German lines.

It seems here that the armistice terms will be interpreted in the light of Italian collaboration against Germany, and if sufficient help is given, then some of the Italian "trespassers" will be forgiven.

CROWN RIGHTS

OTTAWA.—The federal government has passed orders-in-council reserving to the crown in right of Canada all radio-active substances which may occur in minerals found in the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The orders were published in Canadian war orders and regulations.

GERMAN INDUSTRY

Has Been Destroyed In Many Cities By Allied Raids

LONDON.—The Anglo-American aerial offensive has knocked out the industrial capacities of 15 of Germany's leading cities, tied up manpower estimated at perhaps 3,000,000, and made heavy inroads on Germany's fighter plane strength on the Russian front, a survey showed.

Aerial reconnaissance and reports from Germany show that industry in at least 15 cities have been knocked out for at least six months. Hanover and Mannheim are the latest cities listed as probably 60 per cent. or more destroyed. Others include Hamburg, Cologne, Wilhelmshafen, Dortmund, Stettin, Osnabruck, Bremen, Dusseldorf and Emden. The heavy industry in the Ruhr has been virtually erased.

Good Neighbors Also Use Bar Harbor Naval Base

In time of peace the exclusive rendezvous of seafaring and yachting brethren, Bar Harbor, Me., now is the site of a U.S. navy base and is a favorite port of call for the men who keep the Atlantic sea lanes clear of enemy craft. Here you see Canadian sailors coming ashore on liberty. The warmest of good-fellowship exists between the American and Canadian patrols who use the base.

Recruiting Plan For The Three Armed Forces

OTTAWA.—A co-operative recruiting program for Canada's three armed forces, placing top emphasis on air crew, was announced in a joint statement by the defence ministers, Defence Minister Balton for the army, Air Minister Fowler and Navy Minister Macdonald.

Details of the navy's participation are still incomplete, but main points of the plan disclosed are:

1. All men fit for aircrew will have an opportunity to enlist in that capacity.

2. Those fit for overseas army service but without specialist qualifications for aircrew will be enlisted in the army.

3. Men fit for army overseas service or possessing specialist qualifications for aircrew will not be allowed to enlist for air force ground crew.

4. An "equitable exchange" of men will be made between the army and air force at recruiting centres.

5. Men discharged from the army in the recently announced reorganization of home forces will be given opportunity to join the air force.

6. Transfers on a controlled and voluntary basis will be made between the army and air force overseas.

The announcement said all men who are fit to serve overseas in the army but who do not possess specialist qualifications for aircrew duties will be listed in the army, and that no men who are fit for overseas army service or who possess the specialist qualifications for aircrew will be permitted to enlist in the R.C.A.F. for ground duties.

Under the new plan, arrangements will be made for the equitable exchange of men between the army and air force at recruiting centres. All general service (overseas) and National Resources Mobilization Act (home defence) recruits whose ages and abilities qualify them to serve overseas in the army will be referred to an R.C.A.F. recruiting officer stationed in the centre for interview as possible aircrew.

If an applicant wishes to enlist in aircrew and is acceptable, he will be taken over by the air force, but if he prefers army service he will be returned to the army for allocation to the branch for which he is fitted.

Army recruits found unsuitable for overseas service will also be turned over to the R.C.A.F. recruiting officer, who will interview them as possible recruits for ground crew duties in the R.C.A.F., where in ground crew trades physical qualifications are generally not so high as in the army.

NOT DIFFICULT

Future World Order Could Be Assured By Allied Nations

LONDON.—Looking toward the British-American-Russian tripartite conference of foreign ministers, Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, advocated proceeding "by practice rather than by blueprint" in plans for a future world order.

Addressing a national conference of 6,000 women called by the government, Eden added:

"Given an agreement between the British Commonwealth, the Soviet Union, the United States and China, any schemes for regional organizations, security systems and so forth can be worked out without too great difficulty."

He declared that without "some agreement between the four powers 'not one of these projects' is likely to prove to be practical politics."

In welcoming the forthcoming conference, Eden said:

"I hope that one task for that meeting will be to examine and to decide upon methods for joint consultation and joint action between us all in peace as well as in war."

The foundation on which British foreign policy must be built, he continued, is the strengthening of the British Commonwealth, "peace and natural association" with the United States, Russia and China and the association of other states such as France with the United Nations powers.

AN OLD STORY

Some recent speeches by CCF candidates for election call to mind a rhyme entitled "The Socialist," which appeared in an English journal many years ago. It runs:

Oh, he preached it from the house-top,
And whispered it by stealth;
He wrote all kinds of stuff about
The awful curse of wealth.

Yes, he spouted it and shouted it,
And made the rich man wince!
But an uncle left him money—
And he hasn't shouted since.—Ex.

Beau Jonathan

by J.B. Ryan

CHAPTER V.

It was Anne Jamieson who answered the knock at the Castle Theatre dressing room. "Jonathan Hale!" she exclaimed at sight of the tall man in the hall. Then, recovering from her surprise, she smiled and opened the door wide. "Come in, Jonathan."

Monsieur Denys, stretched length on a cushioned settee straightened up and dropped to the floor the book he had been reading.

"Jonathan!" he beamed, hurrying forward with extended hand. "How did you ever find us, mon ami?"

The room was in a state of disorder. Apparel, both feminine and masculine, hung from every conceivable hanging-place. A mirrored stand was covered with jars and bottles of perfumes and cosmetics. The unconventional of the room dampened the pleasure of Jonathan over the meeting.

"What brings you to London, Jonathan?" inquired Anne. "Is anything wrong?"

"No." It was only then that Jonathan Hale realized that his behavior was peculiar. After all Anne Jamieson hardly knew him. That brooch at her breast was probably worth more money than he had obtained for the sale of the Hale farm. Yet the sight of her, beautiful beyond compare, and the memory of the kiss they had shared was enough to override his inherent shyness.

"Anne—" he stammered. "Miss Jamieson—I have come to ask you to marry me."

THE smile vanished from her face and she was so still that Jonathan's voice trailed into silence. Finally the girl spoke. "You are in love with me, Jonathan?"

He nodded. "I have nothing to offer you, Anne, except myself. But at least I shall be taking you away from this—" His gesture, in reference to the disorderly room, seemed to include Monsieur Denys.

"Jonathan," the girl said. "Do you think I am a good girl—as good as Faith Meade?"

"I—" He looked into the grey eyes, trying to reconcile what he read therein with what he had been taught from childhood, with what even the blud could see in this very room. "You are an actress, but—"

"The hesitation is my undoing. The grey eyes darkened with anger. "You uncouth lout!" Anne stormed, color flaming into her white throat and cheeks. "You dare to think that of me!"

"Anne—!"

Her hand swept out, creating a sound like a pistol-shot as she struck him directly on the mouth. "I never want to see or speak to you, again, Jonathan Hale!" she cried, then whirled toward the room's exit.

Jonathan recoiled under the force of the unexpected blow, staggered as his feet caught a rug and sank on one knee to the floor. "Anne!" he called desperately. "Wait! You do not understand. I tell you—"

THE door slammed and before he could scramble to his feet, Monsieur Denys was before him, rapier planted against his chest. "Remain where you are, Monsieur Hale! If you attempt to arise or reach for your sword I shall run you through!"

"Denys!" cried Jonathan, attempting to brush the sword aside. "Call her back—"

The blade evaded his hand and he seemed to his feet. "I never came to apologize, monsieur," the Frenchman shook his head. "Anne is a virtuous girl."

"I know," said Jonathan. "But she did not give me time to assert my faith in her."

Jonathan smiled. "Why were you so slow in speaking?"

Denys smiled. "There is no solid evidence that could not be disregarded," Jonathan tried to explain. "This room, and the fact that I found you alone with her. But—whatever I may have thought when I first entered, I knew the truth when I looked into her eyes."

"You think we live here? I laugh at the notion, mon ami!" The polished sword lowered, and the Frenchman stepped back to allow Jonathan to stand up. "This is a theatre dressing room; those clothes are merely costumes we wear while on the stage, and I was here only to rehearse with our parts in the play to be presented at this theatre tomorrow."

Monsieur Denys paused to study his silent companion. "Come Jonathan," he said, in the tone of one who has arrived at a decision. "We shall go to the home of Mademoiselle Anne and there I shall explain that you voiced your faith in her before I presented you with proof of it."

pockets. Half of it is yours."

"No," Jonathan shook his head and turned away. "That is not sinfully acquired. I want none of it."

The disapproval of the Puritan left no mark on Denys's animation. "Every man must view the world through his own eyes," he philosophized, as he cleared the table of his winnings.

THEY left the Golden Hind, walking the street slowly as Denys, who knew Anne's habits, conned the possible places where the girl might be found. The tavern was three blocks behind before the Frenchman's corrugated brow cleared.

"She may have returned to the Castle Theatre," he remarked, halting at a dim intersection of streets. "It is you she is trying to avoid, and she may have come back believing that I had got rid of you by this time."

"The theatre is just down the street at our right," said Jonathan. "Let us investigate."

Monsieur Denys caught young Hale's arm. "It would be better if I went alone, Jonathan. Remain here, mon ami. I shall not be long."

He strode off into the gloom and rounded the corner of the street. Jonathan settled himself against the bricks of the building, reluctant, but aware that the Frenchman's counsel was good. He tingled at the possibility that a few minutes would find him facing a smiling Anne—

Jonathan shifted position. The pressure of the breeze was cramping his shoulder muscles. What could be keeping Denys? He moved to the corner of the building to peer in the direction of the Castle Theatre. The playhouse was no more than a stone's throw away, invisible in the unlighted dark.

Already Jonathan had been waiting a full half-hour—perhaps more. He became uneasy and then abruptly was in motion. He could stand the doubt and inaction no longer.

Jonathan finds Denys mortally wounded.

Assurance From London

During Darkest Hours Big Ben Gave a Message of Hope

From Latin America comes a very gracious tribute to Britain and the Empire. A leader in a recent issue of the Journal de Brasil (one of Brazil's important national newspapers) written by Barbosa Lima Sobrinho, speaks of the anxious fear felt there for our fate following the fall of France. It contrasts the news of the present time "of Allied victories everywhere, of Germany's difficulties inside Russia and of the strength of the Allied air force" with the "dreadful days of the blitz" in 1940.

"During the Luftwaffe's fierce raids," it says, "one's fear increased nightly that one might not be able to get the BBC. But, without fail, there it was, as steadfast as England herself." The news, the writer recalls, was anything but cheering. "Like Churchill, the BBC spoke only of blood, sweat and tears." But, he emphasizes, it wasn't only the news they waited to hear. It was also "these resounding, lingering strokes which chimed a message of hope and proved that something, at any rate, still stood firm, determined to fight the machiavellian German fury which was concentrated on the heroic rock that was Britain and the faithful Dominions."

The article concludes: "Little do you know, oh London chimera, how you encouraged us in those hours of almost total darkness... Night after night, when our spirits were at their lowest, when all hope seemed senseless, from London came the assurance that a superhuman will stood firm, ready to bear any suffering or sacrifice except that of capitulation. And who gave us the assurance of that epic resistance? You, Big Ben, in the city of London, with your regular chiming echoing in homes throughout the world."—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Quite Impossible

Princess Elizabeth Cannot Be Given Title "Princess of Wales"

Loyal town councillors in Pwllheli, Wales, have suggested that Princess Elizabeth should be given the title "Princess of Wales" in her own right. Unfortunately it is not possible.

Nominally the King can create the title, but in fact his actions are governed by strict traditions. One is that the title of Princess of Wales shall be held by the heir apparent to the throne and that his wife shall be Princess of Wales. While there is a possibility of the King having a son or a grandson, the title must be reserved.

Princess Elizabeth is not the heir apparent, but the heir presumptive. In the case of an heir apparent nobody else can step in between him and the throne. But it is different with a princess. She is presumed to be heir only in the absence of a royal son.

When Princess Elizabeth succeeded to the throne she will be unique in one respect. No daughter has succeeded her father directly so far. Mary succeeded her brother, Edward VI. Elizabeth succeeded Mary. Anne succeeded William III, her brother-in-law, and Victoria succeeded William IV, her uncle.

A DAY WILL COME..

WHAT IS A VICTORY BOND?

A VICTORY BOND is the promise of the Dominion of Canada to repay in cash the face value of the Bond on the date of maturity with half-yearly interest until that time. A Victory Bond is the safest investment in Canada backed by the entire resources of the Dominion. Canada has been issuing bonds for 75 years, and has never failed to pay every dollar of principal and interest when due. A Victory Bond is an asset readily marketable at any time.

Yes, a day will come... when he'll be back, ready to take his place in a Canada he helped make safe for all of us. To speed that day is in our power. We at home... in factories, in offices, on farms... work long hours to hurry it along. We go without, and lend our savings to provide what he needs to win quickly. This is the least that anyone can do. And when that day comes—you'll want to welcome him—and to help him make his hopes come true.

To speed Victory, plan to buy as many Victory Bonds as you can.
